14) These small technical objections will cause unnecessary delay in execution of this work the chief Engineer has made some observations in support of this work being handed over to the P W D I do not know whether the chief Engineer has got any special staff which has specialised in this technical work of R C C Tank that may be employed for this work We have been seeing the same Asst & Executive Engineers supervising over so many of these R C C works

There is very great urgency for this work being completed as Damages are very easy. There is a responsible P W D Asst Engineer who can attend to this work according to the plan prepared by a Competent Architect If there is need for higher technical supervision at any stage of the work, I am sure the Principal & the Asst Engineer will request the services of such officers from the P W D As we all know in these days even a good experienced Contractor can do this work with the help of these officers In the interest of the speedy execution of this work I suggest the H M for Home may agree to ~~hand over~~ entrust this work to the M&S for execution as suggested by the Principal
